Healing Bells

Artist: Sheri Marley

Media used: Driftwood from southwestern Colorado, beads from all over the world (glass, crystal, shells, clay), and antique brass bells.

This is a beautifully hand-made 5-stranded sun-catcher, measuring 47 inches high by 15 inches wide. It has a brass hanging-ring from which is suspended a leather strap holding a 15 inch horizontal length of driftwood. Cascading from the driftwood are 5 strands of different lengths, strung with beads of various types and colors, designed to catch and scatter incoming sunlight. Each strand ends with a brass bell.

White Oak in Field

Artist: Dan Marley

Media used: Infra-red black and white photograph.

"I found this huge, majestic, free-standing white oak in a farm field. I photographed it using an infra-red modified digital camera, which renders sun-lit green leaves as a bright white, allowing a stark contrast with the trunk and branches. I wanted to convey the massive solidarity of the oak tree, and the IR effect puts it in a somewhat surreal mood." - Dan Marley
